I think Victoria's homework has been stolen.

I don't know for certain, but I think so.
We need to help her. Will you help, too?

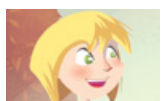

I don't know. Let me see...

Great! What is your idea?

But Mr. Tyson will notice!

- A. No, he won't. He's not looking!
- B. How do you know?
- C. I can send her a paper plane with my homework.

- D. Someone maybe stole it.
- E. Wait! I have an idea!
- F. Sure I will, but what can we do?

Audio Script

NARRATOR: One

GIRL: Good morning, Mr. Tyson.

MR. TYSON: Good morning, Lauren. What brings you here?

GIRL: Do you mind if I ask you some questions?

MR. TYSON: Hmm, but don't take too long please.

GIRL: I won't. I'd like to know what time our class will be.

MR. TYSON: Our class starts at quarter past nine and ends at ten.

GIRL: Okay.

NARRATOR: Two

MR. TYSON: Is there anything else you'd like to know?

GIRL: Yes, which room will the class be in?

MR. TYSON: Room A. I thought you knew.

GIRL: No, I didn't. Thanks a lot.

MR. TYSON: Hmm.

NARRATOR: Three

GIRL: Please, Mr. Tyson, I have another question.

MR. TYSON: Go ahead, Lauren.

GIRL: Are we going to take your subject every day?

MR. TYSON: No, not every day, only Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

GIRL: Good. Now I can plan my schedule.

NARRATOR: Four

GIRL: May I ask two more questions? I'll be quick. I promise.

MR. TYSON: Okay.

GIRL: Are there only twenty students in the class?

MR. TYSON: That was last year. This year, there will be three more students.

NARRATOR: Five

GIRL: Mr. Tyson, I just need to know one more thing.

MR. TYSON (GRUMPY): What is it, Lauren?

GIRL: Will you be teaching only science?

MR. TYSON: No, I'll be teaching science and math to your class.

GIRL: I think that's all I needed to know.

MR. TYSON: Now, help me hand out these papers, will you?

GIRL: Sure!
